The beautiful beaches of Cancun and Puerto Morelos served as nature's host for the famous world travel expert Pauline Frommer...

who visited Mexico's Caribbean during the promotion her new book "Pauline Frommer's Cancun & Yucatan: Spend Less, See More," by swimming with the whale sharks, playing with the dolphins at Delphinus Trek of Xel-Ha and enjoying the cool waters of the underground rivers in the Xcaret park. Pauline, who admitted to the press that "at the moment, Cancun has some irresistible offers making it the perfect destination for everyone, especially those with families," took cooking classes at the Ritz Carlton Culinary Institute; spent time with whale shark expert Kenneth Johnson, enjoyed the region's typical and international variety of foods, lodged at the Aqua and Cancun Palace, explored hotels within a variety of categories and sampled the city's expansive hotel offers. In addition, she visited Puerto Morelos' pier and had the opportunity to taste an "esquite," a corn snack typical of the area.
